RENOWNED ENGINEER IS GREATLY PLEASED WITH OUR EQUIPMENT

Sir George Whitehouse Has Never Seen the Equal of McGill's Engineering Facilities

Yesterday afternoon McGill was favored with a visit from the greatest railway engineer of modern times. Sir George Whitehouse famous as the man who conceived and executed the remarkable railway system of India, the railways of the Argentine Republic and other lines on both sides of the Atlantic, was conducted through McGill's Engineering Building by Dean Adams. Sir George was accompanied to the University by Mr. W. K. Steedman and Mr. W. L. Steedman, the famous football player and author of the Alma Mater song. After inspecting the equipment of the various departments of the Engineering Building, Sir George expressed his great astonishment at its perfection. He had seen nothing to rival the Engineering equipment of McGill. Such a tribute coming from one so famous in his department is peculiarly significant as to what the University is accomplishing.

TORONTO HOCKEYISTS GREATLY IMPROVED BY FAST PRACTICES

Caldwell, German and Hanley all Stars—American Tour Has Been Arranged

Toronto, Jan. 30, 1912 —(Special to McGill Daily)—The last few practices of the Varsity squad have been watched with keen interest. The weather conditions were anything but favorable, a drizzling rain being the accompaniment of an all-day thaw. Accordingly the ice was soft and the going slower than it would have been with hard ice. The Intercollegiate team was hard pressed all throughout the practice by the sturdy and speedy Senior O. H. A. team. Jupp and Arnd, two Freshmen starred for the latter and their furious speed and hard checking was a revelation. The "First" however, did pretty well. Parker, the goalie, was decidedly off color and was the subject of a good stiff "calling" by Dr. Galley, the coach. The defence has undoubtedly improved, Hawley and German worked well together, each making effective rushes from time to time. The forwards play that "three man pass" game, but have not yet got the bearings of each other when near the opposing goal. Webster is very fast, but the line is well balanced. Strome has recovered from his injuries and will undoubtedly figure in the game with Queen's, Friday night. Charley Cotton who was injured in the first practice has completely recovered but he is not as yet showing the same "class" as Caldwell. The latter is the youngest and the biggest man on the team, but in the games so far has not shown stamina in the last half. He skates like a fiend and is a deadly shot.

Manager G. B. MacLaren has arranged to have the Blue and White play the N. Y. A. C. in New York on Feb. 12; Boston on Feb. 14th and then they come to McGill on the 16th. This makes a pretty strenuous week for them, and McGill should have every chance of making a good account of herself at the Arena. Varsity supporters do not anticipate an easy win from Queen's this week, but nevertheless are prepared to back their team heavily should there be any money floating around. With consistent practice the Red and White should capture the coveted premier honors, but it will be no easy matter, and can be accomplished only by means of concerted and persistent effort.

Both R. V. C. Teams Retain Championship — Splendid
Rooting Features Games

On Saturday, January 27, a return match was played between Macdonald and R.V.C. I. and II. Basketball teams, in the High School gym. The play was faster than last Saturday, R.V.C. playing up well while Macdonald's playing was not as effective. Their being in a strange gym doubtless accounted for this. There was some good combination on both sides and the R.V.C. homes played well together. R.V.C. led all through, the final scores being, R.V.C. I, 27, Macdonald I, 9; R.V.C. II, 14, Macdonald II, 7.

The rooting was again a feature, especially the singing of the yell to Dr. Perrin's music. This match decided the fate of the trophy which will remain at the R.V.C. for another year.

The line-up was as follows:
R.V.C. I. Macdonald I.
B. Ross Home A. Pitblado

A class in fancy skating is a feature at Minnesota.

The Minnesota athletic board has announced that so long as the institution is a member of the Conference, the rules of that organization will be strictly obeyed.

Coach Omer of Northwestern track team says: "The twist is the most important thing in the high jump and different coaches use different methods of getting the same results. One prominent Conference coach uses the shoulder movement."

Juniors Visit Gas and Coke Works — Company's Chemist Conducted Party

On Saturday, January 27, the Science '13 Debating Club visited the Gas and Coke works of the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Co., where, by courtesy of the management, they were permitted to inspect the extensive plant. Mr. Sellen, Chemist of the Company, personally conducted the party through the works and explained the very interesting processes in the manufacture of coke and illuminating gas.

The gas supplied to Montreal consumers consists of coal gas and gas-burned water gas, the latter being added to increase the illuminating power. This is produced in large water-gas producers, provided with special devices for spraying crude oil into the bed of hot coke. These producers are provided with a system of reversing valves for changing the direction of the steam blast and the gas outlet. The coal gas is generated in long banks of coke ovens, five ovens to a set heated by a coke burning furnace below. A very ingenious method is used in charging and discharging these ovens. An electric car travels on rails the length of the bank of ovens and carries an extension ram, electrically controlled, which is forced through the oven, discharging the coke at the other end. A similar traveller carries a device by means of which powdered coal is charged into the ovens by air blast. This follows closely upon the "discharger" and the complete operation requires only from two to five minutes. The ovens are almost semi-circular in section, about two and a half feet in diameter, and coaling requires about six hours. The various plants for the removal of the chief impurities of coal gas were also visited. Tar is removed in large condensing tanks, ammonia is dissolved out in rotary scrubbers and hydrogen sulphide is taken up by contact with iron oxide.

The visit was exceedingly interesting and it is unfortunate that more members were unable to attend. The McGill boys thoroughly appreciated the courtesy of the management of the Company and the kindness of Mr. Sellen, and came away more than ever impressed with the relation of practical science to the needs of modern industry.

CURIOUS AMERICAN STUDENT SEEKS OBSCURE INFORMATION

An Undergraduate of Wisconsin Favors Prof. Leacock with Modest Request—In Doubt as to the Color and Religion of Canadians

When Canada and the Canadian people were threshing out the great political issue of American reciprocity in a recent campaign, it was very pertinently remarked by many of the leaders on both sides that whatever happened as regards the so-called "pact," Canada would be much better known in the United States than ever before. The campaign is over; the election is a matter of history; the verdict of the Canadian people has been duly recorded—it remains for us to see just what educative value the whole incident represented as regards American conceptions of this country. Throughout the past few years the mails have been literally full of a species of correspondence which it seems incredible could emanate from even the crudest mentality. From presumably intelligent undergraduates of recognized centres of learning are received questions and enquiries as ludicrous as they are impertinent. Quite characteristic of this type of correspondence is a letter recently received by Professor Leacock whose wide reputation and versatility make him an exceedingly popular mark for the blatant and self-conceited products of the educational system of the Middle Western States.

We reproduce the letter and the comment which Prof. Leacock has written:

821 West Johnson St.,
Madison, Wisconsin,
January 25th, '12

Prof. Stephen Leacock,
McGill University,
Montreal, Canada.

Dear Sir—I have been informed through employees of the Wisconsin Legislative Reference Library that you would be able to give me DATA ON THE CHARACTER OF THE CANADIAN PEOPLE with reference to the possible success of co-operative credit associations.

I have accepted as my thesis "Co-operative Credit Associations," and, as part of my work, I am required to ascertain whether or not the people of Wisconsin are in a position to adopt and to be benefitted by a system similar to that which has been established in Canada. IF YOU WOULD GIVE ME INFORMATION CONCERNING YOUR PEOPLE, THEIR CHARACTER, MODE OF LIVING, AND ANY OTHER CONDITIONS WHICH YOU CONSIDER ESSENTIAL TO THE SUCCESS OF THE SYSTEM I WOULD APPRECIATE THE FAVOR VERY MUCH.

Thanking you in advance for any information you may give me on this subject, I remain,
Very respectfully,
JOHN SMITH.

Dear Mr. Murray:

Your readers may be interested in looking over the enclosed, not merely for its own sake but because it is typical of a system which is being adopted by a certain class of American students. As soon as a student has a thesis to prepare or a subject to debate he immediately writes off a "round robin" of the enclosed kind to a list of people supplied to him from guide books, almanacs and university calendars. He thus, as it were, "farms out" the subject to a number of Professors, Government officials, etc., whom he expects to find idiotic enough to do his work for him. A student who wishes to prepare a critical history of the Presidency writes to Mr. Roosevelt, to Mr. Taft and the executives of the late George Washington; a student who wants to trace the origin of Kingship asks King George for a brief history of the subject; a student interested in capital punishment writes a heart-to-heart letter to the hangman. It is really time that something should be done to stop this silly practice of subletting the students work to the professional and official classes.

This particular gentleman, Mr. John Smith of Wisconsin, appeals to me very strongly for his colossal modesty. Why such a man as Mr. John Smith should sign himself "mine respectfully" except in mere playful mockery, I am at a loss to conceive. When I think that Mr. John Smith's conception of the value of my time is such that he expects me to hand him out gratis a genealogical and historical account of the whole Canadian people, it puzzles me to know that he should assume so mild a tone to a worm such as myself. Flattering though it is to feel that the employees of the Wisconsin Legislative Reference Library are not unkindful of my claim to write a portion of Mr. John Smith's thesis for him, I must decline the honor. There are others whose qualifications are greater, older men, men of higher office and standing on whose judgment Mr. John Smith may more safely rely.

And meantime, Mr. Editor, while Mr. John Smith is sending on his round robin to such men, might I ask you to print his communication to me. I have no grudge against Mr. John Smith. I might if I had the jurisdiction to hang him, and along with him perhaps a few of the employees of the Wisconsin Legislative Reference Library. But if I did, so it would be in no spirit of personal bitterness, but merely as a protest against an idiotic and unjustifiable method of college work that is becoming all too prevalent on this continent.

Very truly,
STEPHEN LEACOCK.

HINDU SCHOLARSHIPS AT CALIFORNIA

The first Hindu scholarships at an American college have been provided for at the University of California, says a despatch from Berkeley, Cal., the fund for the scholarships being provided by Sirdar Jawala Singh, a wealthy Hindu farmer at Moreland, al. Har Dayal, an Oxford graduate now residing in San Francisco, has devised a plan which has a patriotic motive. Students, both men and women, will be brought to the university from India on condition that they return to their native country on graduation. No religious or racial limitations will be placed on the scholarships which are competitive.

Remember the Union Dance on Friday night. First college dance that will not be overcrowded. Be one of the elect and bring her.

Earl Pickering, captain of the 1911 Varsity football team of Minnesota has been denied his "M" by the athletic board of control. His name was simply left off the list of fifteen men who were granted letters. The action is taken as the result of Pickering's conviction as a professional.

Pickering has signed a contract to pitch for the Terre Haute Central League during the coming season.

CORCEOUS SPECTACLE AT THE PRINCESS

Russian Dancers and Hoffmann Girls Captivate Large Audience

All in all Gertrude Hoffman's offering at the Princess this week is the most stupendous, amazing, gorgeous mixture of art and otherwise that has visited Montreal in many moons. The greatest care has been exercised in attaining the highest degree of perfection in point of scenic and electrical effects; a vast fortune has been spent in elaborate, hand-painted costumes and a troupe of rare artists has been imported from Russia by special arrangement with the Imperial Russian Government; and all this with the idea of educating us in an art strange to us though, as it were, the very essence of the life of a more artistic, more romantic people. Very good! we are transported into a world of romance; we are brought closer and closer to nature; we are shown the land of the Syriahs and feel ourselves ethereal, ephemeral beings like themselves; we are transported with the wild, impassioned abandon of the Bacchanale, in fact we forget the base realism of everyday life and allow ourselves to be absorbed by our romantic surroundings. But stop, the ingenious Miss Hoffman foresees this danger and lest we forget ourselves completely, presents to us a burlesqued review of realistic surroundings in the form of what she calls "A Review of 1912," but what those of us who consider ourselves artistically inclined would call an imposition and a mockery. We admit that Miss Hoffman's work in the review was very clever indeed, but everything has its place, and this was very much misplaced. One of Chopin's Nocturnes and "Won't You Come and Splash Me"; a chorographic interpretation of Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," most wonderfully executed and a dozen or more bathing girls jumping from a springboard into a tank of water to the tune of a popular March; these are combinations that hardly go well together. Were the review eliminated—with the exception of the Spring Song interpretation there would be little if any fault to find with the entertainment from an aesthetic standpoint.

Of the two chorographic dramas and the two ensembles presented each in itself is worth the price of admission. Sheherazade and Cleopatra, the Spring Song and Les Sylphides each has its distinguishing mark. In each is shown the various types of dancing which differentiates it from the others, and all are bound together by their romantic background. The idea of things unreal, things untangible that exist only in our imagination pervades the spirit of every dance, and it is in this that their great power lies.

The opportunity of seeing this wonderful exhibition may not soon again present itself, therefore let every lover of art—plastic art especially—make it a point to avail himself of it sometime during this week.

William Lush, former coach of the Yale baseball and basketball teams, has been appointed manager of the Montreal baseball club of the International League.

THIS COLLEGE SHOW IS GREAT SUCCESS

Julien Eltinge Fulfills Expectations — An Excellent Chorus

JULIAN ELTINGE IN "THE FASCINATING WIDOW."

The play at His Majesty's this week is one that should be of particular interest to McGill men. The story turns on the happenings in a co-educational college, depicting some of the advantages and some of the disadvantages that confront women attending such a school.

Julian Eltinge in his double role as Hal Blake and Mrs. Bronte, "The Fascinating Widow" makes both a fine looking man and a stunning girl. His impersonation is beyond criticism and during the course of the play he shows up some of the mannerisms and foibles of the other sex. His voice is, of course, rather masculine, for a woman, but his dancing and movements are very graceful, his Oriental Dance being superb. The gowns he wears fit him like a glove and his bewitching smile, fascinating ways and perfect shape, easily captivate all on whom he bestows his favors. The incidents that occur while he is carrying out his impersonation are well put through and although he slips over some petty thin ice at times his impersonation is entirely inoffensive.

He is surrounded by a cast of all-round strength. Miss Winter as Margaret and Miss Perkins as Mrs. Liffingwell, the Matron, are very good, while Miss Mathis and Miss Orth make charming college girls. Edward Garvie, Gilbert Douglas, Charles Butler and James Sullivan all deserve praise for their admirable fooling and convincing sincerity.

The chorus in their elaborate gowns and with a far higher average of good looks than most of the musical comedies visiting here, add interest to the play. On the whole the company is first class and succeed in a highly successful manner in making the audience enjoy the evening and making them carry home a pleasing remembrance.

The audience was a good first night one and by the way they received the play, by their laughter and applause, it is safe to say that Julian Eltinge will have the pleasure of playing before crowded houses during his stay here. Don't miss it, if you want to see pretty girls, elaborate costumes and best of all Julian Eltinge.

The 480 colleges and universities in the United States have a total enrollment of nearly 320,000 students.

According to the statistics compiled by C. W. Williams of Oberlin, Yale and Oberlin are America's most cosmopolitan colleges.

In the court of a Saxon town William had served faithfully as attendant to the judge for many years without ever having received any reward beyond his wages. On the day of adjournment for the vacation the judge, when about to leave, asked, "William, do you smoke?" William seeing a wooden box under the judge's arm, answered respectfully, "Yes, yer honour." "I knew it by the smell of your coat!" said the judge as he walked out.

McGILL UNION ANNUAL DINNER WILL TAKE PLACE FRIDAY

Social Function Promises to Eclipse all Previous Records for Brilliance—Great Preparations

What promises to be the most successful social function in the history of the McGill Union, will take place on Friday evening, the occasion being the annual dance given under the auspices of the Union members.

For weeks past the Union Executive and the House Committee have been exerting every possible effort to make this year's function more brilliant than any of its predecessors. The various sub-committees also have been busily engaged in the work of preparation and final arrangements concerning every feature and detail have practically been completed.

Great care has been exercised in the choice of music, and a most capable orchestra will be on hand to carry out the ambitious programme provided. A committee of ladies from the Royal Victoria College has kindly consented to take charge of the decorations of the Union for the occasion, which guarantees that this important portion of the work will be executed in the highest form of artistic taste and skill.

Owing to the pronounced success of the supper committee is dealing with one of the city's most prominent caterers, arrangements have been made so that only one supper will be served. This will obviate the unpleasantness and delay of serving supper at two sittings.

During the last few days the floor of the Union Hall, where the dance will be held, has been undergoing a thorough process of preparation for the event, and those in charge have promised that its condition will be a marked improvement over any previous occasion.

The programme of dances, a list of patronesses and all further details will appear in Thursday's issue.

MANAGER ROBERTS EMINENTLY SATISFIED WITH SQUAD'S PROGRESS

Scott Fits in Well at Left—
Davidson and Hughes
Collide

On Monday afternoon the Senior squad went through the fastest hour's practice of the whole season to date. The teams went at it hammer and tongs and pulled off some first class hockey, both individual and combination. Seineh Scott is improving steadily and fits in at left quite nicely. The only accident was a collision between Hughes and Davidson which resulted in the former receiving a black eye and the latter being temporarily dazed. Both will be on deck to-day if all goes well. Billy Wilson failed to watch his cover with accustomed alacrity. His shooting, however, was right up to the mark. Warwick and Smith were as steady as usual. Ryley worked hard and showed that his presence is going to be of wonderful help to the intermediates. Manager Roberts said after: "Well fellows that was a dandy practice; I am proud of you!"

Union Dance on Friday night. Come and see the whole show through.

Stanford recently started its 1912 baseball season, playing its first regular game on January 19.

The vicar being taken suddenly ill, a church warden had some difficulty in finding a substitute. The bishop of the diocese, hearing this, intimated that he would take the Sunday duties himself. At the close of the service the church warden, wishing to "do the right thing," approached the prelate, and thanking him, stammered, "A p-poorer preacher would have done for us, your lordship, but we were unable to find one!"

McGILL JUNIOR TEAM DEFEATS WINGED WHEEL BY WHOLESOME MARGIN

Graham Scores Three Out of Five for McGill—Williamson Plays Star
Game

On last Saturday afternoon the McGill Juniors won from the M. A. A. Juniors in the Arena by the score of 5-2. The opening of the game was very fast but ragged. The hockey at first consisted of brilliant rushes on the part of Graham and Williamson. The team soon got together and played beautiful combination and Graham scored from a mix-up in front of the M. A. A. nets. Both teams worked hard, and after some fine combination of the forward line Graham scored again. The defence men got in some fine end to end rushes here, and by checking back held the score to 2-0 till half time.

The second half started off at a lively clip and Copeland on a burst of speed and some fine stick handling scored for M. A. A. in short time. Both teams are now going strong and the play goes from end to end, fine combination being got away with by both teams, until Darling got well in and netted another for McGill. Both teams are playing fast but loose, first M. A. A. and then McGill score in short time. From this on McGill had the better of the play; the combination of the whole forward line was not only commendable but the play was also very fast. Graham and Williamson got right through the defence together and Graham scored again for McGill. M. A. A. fought hard to save the game, but their staying powers and combination were not equal to that of the McGill team. Darling gets the puck from behind the McGill nets and passes to De Muth, who gets right in on the M. A. A. defence and scores the final goal of the game.

The defence played a fine game, Price getting both man and puck every time. Stewart played a strong game, never letting the M. A. A. get near the goal. Belanger defended the nets in an able manner, stopping some pretty hot shots that looked like sure goals for M. A. A.

The teams lined up as follows:
M. A. A. McGill.
Blumenthal goal Belanger
Mathewson point Stewart
Riddell cover Price
Copeland rover Graham
Parsons centre Darling
Bruce r. wing De Muth
Arnold l. wing Williamson
Referee—Mowatt. Judge of play—Gordon Fraser. Timers—Graydon, Elliot, Prentice.

Williamson received a severe cut over the head which necessitated medical attention after the game.

A RARE MUSICAL TREAT IN STORE FOR MONTREALERS

A concert will be given in Windsor Hall in aid of the University Settlement, on Wednesday evening, February 7th, at 8.30, by Madame Bowman of the Opera Company which has been playing in Montreal all winter. It is hoped that many of the students will be able to attend.

Madame Beatrice Bowman is an American, having been born in New York City. Her father was a prominent lawyer, and her mother a musician and concert pianist. She is a niece of Edwin Abbey, the famous mural decorator.

Madame Bowman's art has led her practically all over this continent. She has sung many times in Boston where she has been much appreciated. She has had undoubted success in all the large cities of the Middle West. She has sung in fourteen concerts with Walter Damrosch of New York, and has appeared with Sousa before audiences that literally numbered thousands.

Madame Bowman has among her personal friends such artists as Sembrich, Nordica, Caruso, Bonci, Louise Homer, Ricardo Martino, Victor Harris, Walter Damrosch and Franz Arens. She sings the part of Gilda in "Rigolette," Theline in "Mignon," Juliette in "Romeo and Juliette," and Irma in "Louise."

By Nordica she is called the greatest living technician. Franz Arens, the leader of the People's Symphony Orchestra, has called her the finest coloratura soprano America has yet produced.

A programme of Madame Bowman's recital will appear in another issue of the "Daily." Tickets for the concert may be obtained at the Royal Victoria College and Strathcona Hall for $1.50 and $1.00.

Is she going to the Union Dance? If not, why not? Get ahead of the other fellow, bring her yourself.

A new set of rowing machines was installed at Columbia University during the Christmas vacation. These have been placed in the rowing room, which has been completely remodelled and enlarged, and with the new equipment there is room for three-eighths rowing at a time. This affords far greater facilities than the crews of Columbia have ever had for indoor rowing practice. It is expected that a great deal more will be accomplished by Mr. Rice, the Columbia Coach, this winter than ever before in developing new material.

The machines are a big improvement over the old ones and embody several new ideas. One of the features consists in rods employed to connect the oars so that the men have to row together. The minute one of the eight gets out of time in catching too soon or too late his rod bends and it is easy for the coach to find out who it is that is breaking up the rhythm of the crew. These innovations have never been tried on any of the machines that have been used.

Columbia defeated Dartmouth in hockey on Monday in a fast but loosely played contest, by the score of 5 to 4. The Columbia team could not work together at first and Dartmouth secured three goals in the first three minutes of play. Later Columbia braced and out-classed Dartmouth in every point of the game. Neither team showed a versatile attack, and individual work was largely responsible for the scoring.
